Social Biz Local Biz

Join us for the first chamber business lunch of the year on Thursday, January 13th at 11:30 am at the Anacortes Lutheran Church. The first portion of the meeting, chamber member Kate Williams, Social Biz Local Biz, will do a short talk on “Why Social Media for Small Local Business?” She will explore how social media and local/mobile marketing could impact your business in 2011 with some simple steps applied consistently alongside your “regular” marketing. Kate will bring along some simple tools to guide us all to more visibility, more customers and more profit in 2011.

Then we will head into our regular networking speed-dating style. Bring promotional materials and prepare your one-minute elevator speech.

Lunch will be catered by Deception Cafe & Grill. RSVP to the chamber. Lunch is free—networking is $15!

San Juan Lanes Bar & Grill

Let's all roll in the new year with the January business after hours at San Juan Lanes Bar & Grill! New owners, Daryl, Teresa, and Ethan Wainman are thrilled to host a fun-filled networking opportunity for all chamber members.

The Wainman’s took over the 50-year-old bowling alley and restaurant in 2010 and plan to keep this center of our community vibrant and sustaining for future generations to come. The couple along with their son Ethan plan to keep the integrity of the food and business the same as the prior owners.

The business after hours is on Thursday, January 20 from 5:30 to 7:00 pm at 2821 Commercial Ave.

For a strikingly good time RSVP to the chamber—293-7911. Don’t dis-spare this is a casual affair!

Petition in Response to Washington State Ferries Proposed Cuts

The Anacortes Chamber of Commerce will act as a signature gathering clearinghouse for a petition to the governor and legislature regarding the proposed reductions in ferry service. This proposal by Washington State Ferries is in response to the governor’s demand to cut costs. Duane Clark (Cap Sante Court Retirement Community) representative of the Anacortes Ferry Advisor Committee is leading the march to send a message to our legislators, please come to the chamber offices to sign the petition before January 15.
Moving forward into 2011

Happy New Year and best wishes for the new decade. What a difference from the last decade. Just a week or two ago, someone said “…and it is the end of the decade too.” I really had not thought about this. We have reached another 10 year milestone.

As humans, we celebrate calibrated moments in time. Our birthdays, anniversaries, the end of the year and beginning of the next, and the end of a decade. These milestones in our lives mean a lot to human beings.

You probably remember exactly what you were doing ten years ago—The Millennium. Then, we faced the unknown Y2K and wondered if the world’s computer systems would meltdown, trapping our money in our banks and bringing the world to a halt. Through a lot of preparation, the Y2K event passed with barely a ripple, just like it should have. But we all remember the night of 12/31/99 as a special event and a major passing in time. We only get to see the passing of a century once in our lifetime.

Looking backwards, this decade could best put as character building. We started the last decade with an economy that was clicking along. The stock market had a small crash in 2000 but rose dramatically through the middle of the decade. Unemployment was generally low and this was the beginning of a period of time where our real estate began an upward spiral. Cars, computers and other consumer electronics from Asia dropped in price fueling demand. The jobless rate was down and it was a challenge to find and hire good, qualified employees. Even the fast food industry was challenged to find employees.

The character building started with one day, 9/11, that jolted our nation and the world. We declared war. Our economy continued to climb. The warning signs were there and even our country’s chief economist at the time, Alan Greenspan, in 2005 warned of a growing marketing in derivatives and the packaging of mortgage securities that were based on paper valuations. The rise in valuations and the economy seemed too good to be true. It was, and it began to unravel in 2007. The paper gains in our homes plummeted with the collapse of the banking system and Wall Street.

Anacortes survived all of this. Yes, our home valuations have dropped to more reasonable levels. We were shaking our heads at the apparent high valuations in 2006 anyway. The stock market is holding up quite well with the Dow up and over 11,500, and we had a strong Christmas for retail. Our boat building business is just starting to show small signs of recovery. The city is stable with reserves still in place with no major cuts in services. Most of our local businesses have held on. The local business indicators for the year show our restaurant business is up just slightly, hotels down just slightly—not bad in a tough economy and a sign of better days ahead.

The chamber is charged up for the new decade. We are kicking off the year strategically focused to bring more business and jobs to Anacortes. The chamber will be looking to fill in our weekends with more events to bring tourism to town at a scale that matches our character and maintains our quality of life. In January, you will hear the announcement of a new yacht repair boatyard that could add 35–50 new jobs during the year. We will be marketing Anacortes as a yacht repair destination around the world. The Tethys water and beverage plant is moving forward through its planning and development stage; it could start construction in a year or more with construction jobs and sales tax followed by a plant that could start at 300 new jobs and grow to 800 or more. Our refineries are almost back to normal production, and while the loss of life last year was very tough for our community, the Tesoro family continued to work during the rebuild at the refinery.

Our downtown storefronts have gone through some transitions. Some businesses have not made it, but their spaces were filled by other businesses fairly quickly. Our downtown is fairing much better than others in the area.

As we move into the new decade, what are your goals for your business? The recovery will not be like the previous times, but a more settled, slowly growing and prospering economy seems to be the course we are being given. Our biggest asset in Anacortes, a pleasant place to visit and a wonderful place to live, is still intact and getting better all the time. We have a lot of reasons to smile and be carefully optimistic for the start of 2011 and this new decade.

At the chamber, we have a great plan, an enthusiastic and dedicated board and staff. We are looking forward to a prosperous new year, a decade of growth and wish you the same.
Airporter Shuttle / Bellair Charters

Airporter Shuttle has been serving the community for over 25 years. With 11 scheduled trips a day, it’s no wonder they are the number one choice for getting to SeaTac. Airporter Shuttle also offers transportation to downtown Seattle, and it’s widely used by passengers getting to and from the Anacortes Ferry Terminal.

As with any successful business, Airporter Shuttle started from very humble beginnings. Red Wickkiser, the founder of the company saw a need for transportation to SeaTac without all the headaches of navigating I-5 and stress of dealing with parking. Red soon hired his son Larry Wickkiser. Larry helped with driving, operations, and marketing. Their efforts and commitment paid off. Airporter has grown immensely over the years, from a one-van operation to a fleet of more than forty-five vehicles. The business was sold to Richard Johnson in 2006. A long-time employee of Airporter, Richard picked up where the Wickkisers left off, maintaining the integrity of the business, and making improvements where needed.

In 2008, a Burlington location was opened to assist with the growth of the company. Since a large volume of the business comes from Skagit, it was a smart move to get some roots in the area, and ultimately make the service more convenient for local residents. Airporter has also seen some diversity over the years. Around 16 years ago they expanded to include their private charter business, Bellair Charters. In fact, it’s their best-kept secret. Charters are a unique way to get a group of people together and travel to fun destinations. They are used for a number of events, seminars, employee appreciation outings, tours, educational trips, weddings and athletics programs. They have taken groups everywhere from local wine tours lasting 4 hours, to a 2-week trip through the Canadian Rockies. The possibilities are endless, and it’s super affordable. A full day trip to Seattle or Vancouver, BC, for a 47-passenger coach averages out to no more than $18 per person. How’s that for a deal?

Airporter Shuttle / Bellair Charters delivers people to their destinations safely, comfortably and on time.

Karin Baldwin

Karin Baldwin is new to the chamber board of directors this year, however, having been born and raised in Anacortes, she is certainly not new to the area. Her love for beautiful Fidalgo Island has kept her interests focused in Anacortes, feeling that it was the best place that her and her husband, Mike, could raise their four children, Josh, Rachel, Zack and Adam. She has spent many years in community service and volunteer work through the local schools and her church.

As a longtime business entrepreneur, Karin has owned and managed several local businesses, including property management and running “Bearly Used,” a retail shop. More recently, her interest in art has led her to open Citrus Art Studio in the Anacortes Keystone Building, with her daughter, Rachel Erickson.

Karin’s main area of expertise, however, is president and owner of Quantum Construction, Inc. where she manages the business along with her husband, Mike. Quantum is a general contractor with a wide scope of construction projects, ranging from commercial and industrial to custom residential. They have been involved in many local business additions and remodel projects and Karin enjoys attending the monthly chamber after hours events as many of them are held in business that they have had a hand in constructing. For their professionalism, knowledge of the trade and sales Quantum was chosen to receive the HCI Metal Builder of the year award in 2008.

Karin is excited to have been invited to be on the Anacortes Chamber Board of Directors and to see the progress that the chamber is making to fulfill their vision to be the most livable and economically vibrant waterfront community in the Pacific Northwest.

Karin is serving on the Executive Director Search committee and the Membership Division and looking forward to becoming involved in the Anacortes Futures Project. As a lifetime resident of Anacortes, she supports the success of Anacortes businesses and understands their importance to the Anacortes economy. Thinking back on her life experiences, she says that everything she needed to know about business she learned when she was ten years old selling berries out of the family-run Best Road Berry Stand: treat customers with respect, charge a fair price and offer a product that you are proud of, smile, and have your business open during the hours that the ferry traffic comes by.
Visitor Information Center

Above: Forty volunteers run the VIC – always keeping up to date on what’s available for visitors and locals alike. The visitor center assists nearly 20,000 people per year. The party was held at the Depot Arts Center and was hosted by Avenue Catering.

Right: Visitor Information Center Manager, Wilma Cooper who has been assisting visitors for 18 years and Mary Talosi, Director of the VIC, celebrate at the volunteer Christmas party.

Library Centennial Celebration

Celebration time! The Anacortes Public Library celebrates 100 years of service to the Anacortes community in March 2011 with a month of activities commemorating this amazing centennial milestone. Highlights include:

Love at the Library
Saturday, Feb. 12, 7-9:30pm

A special Valentine event, this evening of music, poetry, wine, savories, desserts, chocolates, and other treats begins our celebration of the library’s first 100 years as the cultural core of our community and benefits the library’s future. Tickets are $100/couple; $50/person; available at the library, Donatello’s, How It Works, and the chamber.

Community Centennial Celebration
Saturday, March 5, 11am

Mayor Dean Maxwell and other notables join the festivities, which continue throughout the day with fun, educational, and entertaining adult and children’s activities at the library.

Centennial Dance Party
Saturday, March 26, 7:30-10:30pm

Step back to the big-band era with Skagit Swings, an 18-piece big band with vocalist Beth Wallace, at Skyline Beach Club, 6041 Sands Way, Anacortes. Tickets are $25/couple, $15/single; available at the library, Donatello’s, How It Works, and the chamber.

Chamber After-Hours
Thursday, March 31, 5:30-7pm

An open house at the library for Anacortes Chamber of Commerce members to participate in the centennial celebration.

Please join us for these and other centennial events and activities; see cityofanacortes.org for details.
AHS Hanging Baskets
Class of 2012

The Anacortes High School Class of 2012 will have baskets available again this year. They also have a new grower and expect the baskets to be lush and full. They will be in wrought iron with a cocoa liner. The price will be same as last year—12" baskets will be $35. They will be ready for pick-up or delivery on May 6, 2011.

Please email your request for an order form to colleen@colors.com. Order deadline is February 25, 2011.

The class of 2012 would like to thank you for your support in helping provide a safe, alcohol and drug free graduation party.

Stay in touch with state legislators

The Skagit Business Alliance, a coalition of local chambers, and the builders and realtor associations, will be coordinating weekly calls to our legislators. You may join in on Mondays (starting January 3) at 9:00 am where Gary Chandler of the Association of Washington Business will lead off the calls with a legislative update, then during the 13 week session, a different representative from the 39th, 40th and 10th district will be on the line to answer questions.

To access the call, dial 1-866-295-5950 and enter the participation passcode 68998.

Facebook

A year after Facebook opened to the public in 2006, savvy business owners recognized the potential of the social media site to drive consumers to their websites by setting up business pages off their personal Facebook profiles. What tremendous insight: Facebook now has over 500 million active users the world over, a virtual marketing paradise at your finger tips for little to no cost.

It is important to be authentic and transparent when using social media to market a business. People like to connect with people, not faceless brands. Just as in life, utilizing Facebook as a marketing tool is essentially about building and maintaining relationships, and even to some extent blurring the lines between business and personal relationships.

Facebook has already set up tools for measuring your pages’ success. Through the insights dashboard you can monitor the monthly active users, daily new likes, daily post views, post feedback, and demographic of your users. There are also useful tools for you to edit news preferences (so you don’t have to know that Aunt Mertle’s bunions needs lancing or your neighbor Otis & his brother Frank won the tag-team hotdog eating contest on Saturday night). You can set your security and profile settings to give as much or as little information out about you or your company as well.

Incorporating other tools into your Facebook that you already use is another great way to reach consumers with social media such as Twitter, WordPress, Pownce, Jaiku or Google Reader. Once you have added these tools to your Facebook profile it’s easy as hitting share; consumers can see the Twitter updates from your Facebook page without necessarily having to follow them on Twitter. Brilliant.

Good examples of well utilized local business pages on Facebook are the Islands Chapter of the American Red Cross, Epicure, and the Watermark Book Company. Many of our members utilize Facebook but some still do not. If you are interested in learning more about using Facebook as a social media tool, contact the chamber office about setting up a class.

Publicity & Exposure

Put news about your business in the hands of hundreds of other business members and public officials through our monthly newsletter. Are you offering a new product or service, has one of your staff or your business won an award or received any kind of special training? Let your fellow chamber members in on the excitement by sending us your press releases. All releases are due by the 10th of the month prior to publication to info@anacortes.org.

Also as chamber members you can display your brochures and promotional materials in our Visitor Information Center, where thousands of visitors pass through each year. The chamber staff and V.I.C. volunteers field thousands of calls per year for member business referrals in our area.

Bulk Mail Permit

Another great promotional tool to take advantage of is the chamber’s bulk mail permit. Not only does the permit give you a significant cost saving on first class postage, depending on the size of your company using the permit monthly for direct mail campaigns could cover the cost of your membership within a year! To use the permit you must have a minimum of 200 identical pieces. Contact the chamber office for more details.

Membership Mailing Lists

Your bulk mailing is made easy by using our chamber member mailing list, available exclusively to our members. You provide the mailing labels and we’ll do the printing. Call the chamber office for details.

Carla Cummins

Carla Cummins lived most of her life in Springfield, Missouri. Today she resides in Anacortes and has many passions, including family, boating, horses, community, and international travel. In many ways the Anacortes chamber has replaced the extensive family she misses back in Missouri. She has had the great fortune in her life to live each of these passions to the fullest, as her resume clearly shows.

Carla went to MSU and studied equine science, which she used to start a business in equine reproduction, along with professional horse training.

She owned and managed a large steak and seafood restaurant in Missouri for many years, selling in 2002. After about six months of searching for just the right business she found it in All About Honeymoons and Vacations. This is a nation wide travel franchise that uses the buying power of thousands of travelers to give her clients the best value in intimate get aways or group international adventure.

When her husband took a job in Washington, she was able to sell the Missouri agency and open a new one here, in our beloved Anacortes. Today after eight years in the travel industry and thousands of satisfied customers, she is just the kind of person you want to help you navigate the complicated international travel industry. As a professional, you work all year for a few days of vacation. Why not leave it to a travel expert to be sure you make the most of your hard earned dollar? As Carla will be glad to tell you, “I never charge a fee for my service; neither does the internet, but the internet offers no customer service.”
